Discourse on English Grammar

By Louis Hill Pratt, '58

It is alarming when one stops to realize that there are few persons with a thorough knowledge of the generally known as American English. We stumble over it, abuse it and often say things we don't mean at all. We stably employ our words in such a fashion that they fail to represent our true thoughts. I say this is alarming because man is severely handicapped unless he can accurately communicate with his neighbors.

Assuming that there is a cause upon which every effect is predicated, the situation needs a remedy. Just what has caused this condition? No matter what we can English the most difficult of languages? Variation in the definition of words can definitely be cited as a determining factor. If "fish" may eat, I repeat it, but if the chef's "fish" dinner, they prepare it. On the other hand, if "fish" someone, I take revenge, if by my tailor will need them. It's just as simple as that!

Frequently Americans at a difficulty determining the correct implication of terms themselves. Is it any wonder that foreigners find our language difficult and confusing? How can we teach more than we know about our Mother Tongue? To a foreigner, HOUSE would suggest a structure. Yet, the same HOUSE can be used as a verb implying the provision of shelter. Finally, one begins to wonder if anything is yet immobile. After a discharging experience with such homonyms as rain, reign, meet, mend and the like, we discover the word READ. Is it "read" or "red"? It could be either, depending on its use, since READ is both present and past tense of the infinitive "to read."

Really, there is no limit to the difficulties and controversies of our language. To the European, Asian, African, South American and Australian, I offer this challenge: Develop an interest in our tongue, study it, practice it, master it and you will have accomplished a feat as great as Americans themselves and you too will have won a place in the hearts of the American people for all times.

Extensive Renovation Program Underway At Savannah State College

Savannah State College is making extensive plans in preparation for its 1956-57 school term which began on September 23. At one of his weekly press conferences Dr. W. K. Payne, President of Savannah State College, elaborated on the gigantic renovation program which has already been initiated at Savannah State College to make it better able to meet the needs of numerous students.

Wilcox Gymnasium is being renovated. The outside will be waterproofed and painted. The inside will be replastered and painted.

The rest rooms in Melvind Hall are being covered with quilted tile. New toilet stalls and individual steel metal stalls are being installed. A lounging area will be furnished for the women's area. Melvind Hall is used as Administration Building with offices, classrooms and an auditorium.

Hill Hall, in which the library is temporarily located, is being rearranged and redecorated. The entire first floor will be used for the library in order to provide catalog space in preparation rooms for the new library to be constructed in the near future. The south wing of the second floor of Hill Hall is being renovated to house the following offices: Education, Economics and Research, Social Sciences, Public Relations and Alumni Affairs, as well as quarters for the practical nurses enrolled in the State Area Trade School. The north wing is being redesigned for apartment quarters for single teachers. The floors are being covered with master-paved tile. Individual steel-metal stalls are being provided in the rest rooms. The stair-way halls as well as offices and living quarters are being re-plastered and painted.

Adams Hall, which serves as the main dining room, is being redecorated and painted. The floors in the food preparation kitchen, dishwashing and rest room area will be covered with quilted tile, and the side walls with ceramic tile.

Morgan Hall, the center for the Division of Trades and Industries, State Area Trade School and Audio-Visual Center, is being painted and fire doors are being installed.

In order to make way for the construction of the technical building and new library, Dr. Payne pointed out, it was necessary for the school of Regents to sell several frame cottages and Parson's Hall; frame buildings are being removed from the campus.

The Periscope

By C. Eugene Hubbard

The month of October finds the "classman" looking forward near an end with tension and bitterness between Democratic and Republican candidates on the increase. Both parties are lashing out from all angles at each other.

Democratic presidential nominee Adlai Stevenson has chosen President Eisenhower's H-Bomb policy as one of the major issues in which he plans to fight. Stevenson intends to carry his fight to the nation by means of radio and television in an attempt to continue his discussion on Eisenhower's policies.

Republican presidential nominee Eisenhower on the other hand, said that Stevenson and his democratic running mate Estes Kefauver are making a "record of clattering campaign oratory" and cited as examples, the issues of "big business" versus "small business", the draft, the H-bomb tests, national defense, and peace. Mr. Eisenhower also accuses Mr. Stevenson of political irresponsibility in implying that the republican administration cares little or nothing for the "Little Man."

Progress on the Suez crisis has been slow in developing. According to United States Secretary of State John F. Dulles, Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov wants to keep the Suez dispute deadlocked and "there is no chance for a Suez settlement before the November election. If this happens it will be hailed as a personal triumph for Mr. Dulles. Even though the Egyptians have been trying to soft peddle the Suez question they are beginning to feel the economic effects of the Western boycott.

Complaints have been made that Negroes in the South are being deprived of their voting rights. The United States Department of Justice asked Congress to investigate whether Negroes are being deprived of voting rights in Pierce county, Georgia and in Ovaschita and Rapides Parishes, Louisiana.

The American League Pennant winners, New York Yankees won a seven game world series. In this series the Yankees had the aid of two young pitchers who contributed magnificently in helping the Yanks to win. In the fifth game of the series, Yankee pitcher Don Larsen pitched the first perfect game ever to be pitched in the history of a world series game. In the seventh game young Johnny Kuck pitched the Yankees to baseball's World Championship when he pitched three hitless, defeating the Dodgers 9-0.

With the ending of the 1856 world series, the Brooklyn Dodgers are off on their tour of the Pacific and Japan. Casey Stengel is being named manager of the Yanks for two more years.

Humor

Sue: Did you hear of the girl whose first husband was a millionaire, second husband an actor, third husband a minister and fourth an undertaker?
Sue: No. How did that happen?

Sue: One for the money; two for the show; three to get ready; and four, to go.

How to Win Friends and Influence Professors

Oklahoma Daily writer Ed Turner has come up with a new way of college living which, in keeping with the times, he calls "classmanship." Briefly, he says, it means the knack of frustrating a well-meaning professor to such an extent that he will want to quit his chosen profession as a teacher and to work for a munitions factory. Here are some of his rules:

"First of all: always be late to class. Upon entering NEVER look meek or apologetic for disturbing the class. Appear surprised as if this section was scheduled to meet at this time or even look busy that they could go on without you. Many an accomplished classman has caused the professor to thumb quickly through his class bulletin to see if perhaps he might have met at 8:35 instead of 8-10."

Disagree openly with the professor. An economics instructor says in his most profound and conciliatory tones: "The theories of Adam Smith are the foundations of our modern system of economics." You say in an audible whisper: "But that's so passé" making him look as if he had an old pair of plus-fours and was shouting 23 skidoo instead of delivering a lecture.

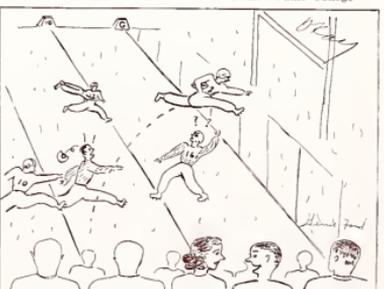

Leavenmanship is another effective gambit that will add sparkle to every class room. About 10 minutes before the class is over slam your book shut, zip up your notebook, tuck your pencil neatly in your pocket and begin tapping your foot spasmodically, whistling to yourself, if you are a poor whistler. At five minutes before the hour, scoot up on the edge of your seat, alternating your gaze between the wall clock and your watch, shouting "X minus 5, X minus four, X minus three" right up until the end of the hour."

YOU HAVE TO COME TO CLASS

(ACP)—Freshmen and sophomores at the University of Connecticut are faced with compulsory class attendance this year. Under a new ruling, they're expected to attend all registered classes and, if, for any reason, classes are missed, the number of absences equals the number of credits for the course, his case will be called and reviewed. Penalties will range from restriction and probation to suspension from the University. University officials think the new ruling will raise the standards of academic achievement among the freshmen and sophomores.

President Addresses First Assembly

On Thursday October 4, during the regular all-college assembly, Dr. W. K. Payne, President of Savannah State College, delivered his Annual Message to the members of the college family. The President extended greetings to those present.

He stated—"I believe that we have all assembled here at Savannah State College because we believe in education." If we go forth with this concept in mind, all of our experiences will be of value to this belief. This premise will influence our efforts and activities."

President Payne further stated that "Our assemblies are a part of our educational program. For this reason they are compulsory... Assemblies are not called unless it is believed that they will contribute to the educational program. Education covers the ground with the courses one takes."

The approximately one thousand persons assembled in Melvind auditorium heard the President state that "Many of you are already facing problems that you had not anticipated. You will face many more." One should long for the ability to face problems instead of the absence of them. There are many things to be done other than attending college but attending college is the main job at Savannah State College now.

Students were reminded that "You are living in an age filled with the wonders of civilization. The opportunities that are presented to college men and women today are greater than at any other time. No matter what your state may be today as far as your clothes, friends, and the like are concerned, you are the possessor of a great opportunity if it is your privilege to attend college today. We believe that Savannah State College has a reservoir of advantageous educational experiences for the thriving student. If you look hard enough and seek earnestly enough, you will find them. If you will, you can make this academic year 1956-57 the most illuminating in your experience."

Young lady presenting parking ticket at police station: "Did one of your men lose this? I found it on my windshield."

Teacher: "Egbert, if you're not chewing gum, what is that lump in your mouth? Candy?"
Egbert: "No ma'am, I'm soaking a prune to eat at lunch."

It's fun to try. Maybe you can top other students in colleges across the country... and you can match wits with the editors of Reader's Digest.

Why do far more college graduates read Reader's Digest than any other magazine? What is it that makes the Digest the most widely read magazine in the world—with 11 million copies bought each month in the United States, plus 3 million abroad? Why is it read each month by at least 60 million people, in 12 languages—Arabic, Danish, English, Finnish, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Norwegian, Portuguese, Spanish and Swedish?

Can you spot in a typical issue of Reader's Digest the universal human values that link scholars, statesmen, scientists, writers, businessmen, housewives? Can you pick out the articles that will be most popular with the average Digest reader?

You may find... you know more about people than you think!

Here's all you do. Study the descriptions (at right) of the articles in the October Reader's Digest—or, better still, read the complete articles in the issue itself. (But you are not required to buy The Reader's Digest to enter the contest.) Then simply list the six articles—in order of preference—that you think readers of the magazine will like best. This will be compared with a nationwide survey conducted among a cross section of Digest subscribers.

Duke Ellington Visits Campus

By I. A. McIver

Even though Wednesday, October 3, 1956, was the day on which the initial name of the 1956 World Series between the New York Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers was being played, and in spite of the fact that Mickey Mantle had just closed a two-run home run to give the Yankees the advantage just as the "Duke" was arriving on the campus, the students of Savannah State relinquished their box seats before the television sets to hear the inimitable Duke Ellington play some of his compositions on the Stehway in Meltrid Auditorium.

After the "Duke" played such tunes as "Don't get Around Much Anymore," "I'm Beginning to See the Light," and many of his other compositions, the members of Delta Eta Chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity presented him with a monogram bearing the Alpha Phi Alpha insignia.

Before departing, Ellington made his final and famous statement, "I Love You, Maids." Through of autograph hunters and amateur photographers prevented him from leaving before they had secured his signature or snapshot.

The Creative Corner

J. Campbell, Jr.

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever," says the poet John Keats. But precisely what is this thing which brings to the individual such eternal joy? Is it a face which with the years wears away like the green leaves of Spring with the coming of Winter? A building that crumbles before the onslaught of a gigantic tidal wave or an earthquake? Is beauty a lasting work of art reaching its culmination in the enigmatic smile of Da Vinci's Mona Lisa and the delicate symphonic balance of the Grecian statue, Venus de Milo?

Is beauty a relative concept arising out of the personal subjective feelings of an individual, when confronted with a pleasing external object—or is it an absolute, invariable, universal concept which brings a feeling of joy, as expressed by Keats, forever to him who perceives it? Is beauty eternal or simply a fleeting phenomenon, which once awakening the senses to a supreme state of felicity, fades softly away, leaving one with but a dim, image that is never fully recaptured again?

What is beauty?—the schools of thought are many and there are numerous theories—but I will tell you what beauty is. Beauty is the rising and setting of the eternal sun; an ephemeral glimpse of a rainbow which gently fades away at the end of a shower on a cool summer's day. Beauty is the jungle—beauty is the quiet, peaceful, flow of the tiny brook in the Dakota Hills. Beauty is the wild, savage, untamed, beat of the tom-toms, echoing across the dark, unlighted, African continent—the restrained, melodious, and harmonious blending of a Classical symphony, floating gayly, blissfully, through the walls of a great concert hall. Beauty is the sun of Winter—the sad passing of Spring; Beauty is the unseen wind, rushing across plains and prairies, singing its joyous song to all.

Beauty then, transcends national boundaries and favors no one, but manifests itself to all who can recognize and appreciate its qualities. Beauty abounds in nature, and in the art which man creates. One is a inestimable beauty surround us every day. It is up to us to learn to appreciate the beauty with which nature and man have so richly endowed us.

COLUMBUS, OHIO—(ACP)—All those stories about college athletes who can't spell their own names fall to pieces as a result of this story. It's about Kent State University and comes via the College Crossroads column in the Ohio State Lantern.

It seems Kent State has a varsity filled only with athletes, each of whom participates in a varsity sport and also holds down an outside job. That darned old above both the all-fraternity and all-men's grade averages for the past quarter.

SSC Presents First Lyceum Program

The Lyceum Committee of Savannah State College presented on Thursday evening, October 18, at 8:15 P.M., the Robert Jeffrey Dancers, one of the newest dance companies on the American musical stage. This group's accept was on entertainment and the production was designed to bring a new idea in dance programs. The program consisted of a combination of romantic ballet, dramatic dance in the Spanish style and musical comedy dance in the best American tradition, with a liberal sprinkling of song.

Three leading young American dancers headed the company of seven: Glen Teley, Beatrice Tompkins and Gerald Arpino. TV fans readily spotted Mr. Teley who has danced on nearly all the major video revues. He has also been featured in opera ballet, in Broadway musicals and in concert dance here and in Europe. Since 1951 he has been a TV "regular" at Christmas time as a dancing shepherd in the annual telecasts of Gian-Carlo Menotti's opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

Beatrice Tompkins has toured the U. S. and Europe as soloist with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo and with the New York City Ballet. The dark-haired dancer was also prima ballerina of the San Francisco Opera.

Gerald Arpino is another young veteran of TV, who has also been featured on Broadway in "Amie Get Your Gun" and "Bless You All" and with the May O'Donnell Modern Dance Company. Latin America has also had him as soloist with the Nana Goller-Paul Petroff Ballet.

A triple threat supporting performer in the company is an extraordinary young man named John Wilson. He demonstrated his gifts as a dancer, a baritone and a pianist. At the age of 25, Mr. Wilson has been teacher, a prolific composer and arranger and a director of dramatic works.

Choreography and staging of the program were done by Seattle-born Robert Jeffrey whose ballet productions for Ballet Theatre, for the Ballet Rambert of London, and for the Metropolitan Opera Theatre have marked him as one of the leading newcomers to the dance. One of his original ballets was featured on the program which was held in Meltrid Auditorium.

He was also the leading ground gainer and leading scorer for the Tigers during the 1955 football season.

Aside from football, Batchelor has won the pole vaulting title in every track meet in which he participated during the 1956 track season. In the S.E.A.C. Conference, he won the 1956 pole vaulting title and set a new Conference record. His other victories came at the 1956 Alabama State College Relays and the Conference Relays, at Tullege Institute.
