New Men's Dormitory Will Be Dedicated In Honor of The Founder, Richard R. Wright of Savannah State College

Program To Be Held February 18th

Savannah State College will dedicate over $2,500,000 worth of buildings and equipment on Saturday, February 18. The buildings and equipment to be dedicated include the new Men's Dormitory, the Health and Physical Education building, the Central heating plant, a water tank, and several other improvements to the institution.

The new Men's Dormitory has been named in honor of the founder of the institution, Richard R. Wright. The building is a three story building of bricks with 168 rooms which will accommodate 210 persons. There are two storage rooms, a recreation room, and two bath rooms on each floor. On the first floor is the student lounge. The rooms are painted in the pastel colors. All of the furniture and equipment in the building is new. The Health and Physical Education building is named in honor of the second president of the institution. This addition to the Campus Trust, C. G. Wiley. The building has a modern recreation center, classrooms, offices, and storage rooms.

The Central heating plant heats all buildings on the campus is expected to save hundreds of dollars yearly.

Practically all buildings on the campus have been improved within the past two years. The Administration building has gone through a complete remodeling job costing several thousands of dollars. The college dining hall and the Home Economics building have been remodelled.

The dedication will bring to the institution several thousands of its graduates, former students and friends.

This is going to be the largest dedication ceremony that has ever taken place at the institution.

Teachers Exam. Offered Students

According to an announcement by Dr. Thomas Brooks, Director of Student Personnel service, the prospective teachers of Savannah State College will have an opportunity to take the National Teacher Examinations on February 11. Dr. Brooks will supervise the administration of the tests.

Scores on the National Teacher Examinations are used by a large number of school systems and teacher education institutions throughout the country as an aid in evaluating such of the qualifications of prospective teachers as are measured by the tests. Dr. Brooks said. The scores may also be useful to examinees who are interested in knowing their own strengths and weaknesses with respect to such teacher qualifications as are measured by the tests, he added.

At the one-day testing session candidates may take the common Examinations which include tests in Professional Information, General Culture, Verbal Expression, and Non-Verbal Reasoning. In addition,

President Speaks In Assembly

Julius E. Browning, president of the college assembled for the first time after the Christmas Holidays on Thursday, January 5, to hear President W. K. Payne.

President Payne welcomed the new and returning students to the college. His topic was "The New Year."

In the speech, he mentioned the fact that he hoped that the students here at the college would make this a better year than the last one and that the students would be successful in achieving and accomplishing their goals during this year.

He also stated that this was a "big year." In achieving the goals of making this a better year, the students must be more determined than last year. He stated that during the last year there showed some achievements made that would make each student want to do better.

Each candidate may take one or two Optional Examinations which are designed to demonstrate mastery of subject matter in the fields in which the candidate is prepared.

S.S.C. To Nominate For Who's Who

Savannah State has been invited to nominate for Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities and procedures are now under way for the selection of the students, according to announcements by Dr. W. K. Payne.

In these procedures the student council was given the opportunity for making selections according to certain defined criteria. These selections will be checked by the Student Personnel Office, the Registrar's Office, the Business Office and the Office of the Dean of Faculty. These names will then be submitted to the Administrative Council and the president of the college for confirmation.

The criteria for selection include: (1) a 1.5 or better average; (2) junior or senior classification; (3) enrollment at Savannah State for at least one year prior to nomination; (4) excellence in scholarship; (5) leadership and participation in extra-curricular and academic activities; (6) good character; (7) quality of citizenship and rendering of services to the school; (8) promise of future usefulness to the school, business and society.

Savannah State is happy to participate in such a great program because of the signal honor of having the students to become members of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

4 Tigers Make All S. E. A. C.

Isiah McIver, the Tigers didn't win the conference championship this season as they had planned, but they did have four members of the team picked for the All-Conference football team by the S.E.A.C. which met at Paine College in Augusta on December 1, 1955.

The All-Conference players are Charles Cameron and E. Z. McDaniels from the senior class, Albert Scrutshins from the sophomore class and Willie Batchelor of the freshman class.

Leadership Today Institute Theme

By Reubin Cooper
The Ninth Annual Leadership Institute was held from January 29 through February 3. The theme selected for this occasion is "College Leadership Today—World Leadership Tomorrow." The guest speaker for the opening of the Institute was the Rev. Homer G. McEwen of Chicago First Congregational Church, Atlanta. Rev. McEwen is a graduate of Straight College, New Orleans. He received his B.D. degree from Chicago Theological Seminary, and he has done considerable work on his Ph.D. at the University of Chicago. Rev. McEwen has pastored in Chicago and Buffalo. He comes to us with wide experience in student organization work.

Also planned in connection with Leadership Week were two other activities. The committee plans to secure the voting machine for demonstration pur-

Annual Press Institute To Be Held April 19 - 20

Savannah State College will sponsor the Annual Press Institute on April 19-20, with Dr. Joseph Murphy, executive director of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association and Director of the National Council of School Press and Advisers Association, as keynote speaker. The Institute, endorsed by the Georgia Interscholastic Association, is open to all editors, advisers, and staff members of student publications in any high school elementary school in Georgia.

Savannah State College will sponsor the Annual Press Institute on April 19-20, 1956 with Dr. Joseph Murphy, executive director of the Columbia University Scholastic Press Association and Director of the National Council of School Press and Advisers Association, as keynote speaker. The Institute, endorsed by the Georgia Interscholastic Association, is open to all editors, advisers, and staff members of student publications in any high school or elementary school in Georgia. Awards will be given to schools with the best newspapers, yearbooks, magazines, or other publications, classified as senior high, junior high, elementary - printed, mimeographed, or lithographed.

The Savannah State College Press Institute was organized in 1950 as a local project, but because of increased interest, the participation in it is in cities of schools throughout the state of Georgia, and nationally famous consultants. The Institute is organized to encourage student publications to extend their influence and to raise their standards; to promote the belief that they are a means for education and not an end in themselves; to consider them as avenues of expression or the best in student thought and writing; to foster the interests and promote the professional status of the advisers; to encourage a sympathetic understanding among the advisers, the administrators of the schools, and the community; to aid those who are in need of assistance; and to serve as a clearing house for all in matters of mutual interest.

The Press Institute is a member of the National Council of Scholastic Press and Advisers Associations as well as a member of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association. Wilton C. Scott, director of Public Relations at Savannah State College, is Director for the Institute with various faculty members serving as co-ordinators.

ACHIEVEMENT

By Louis Hill Pratt, '58

It is well occasionally to review the pleasures and achievements of the past. Too often, however, we tend to become satisfied with our past laurels and our present progress is impeded.

We fail to recognize the inevitable fact that the past only reflects what we were. It is necessary that we continue to achieve, for when man becomes unproductive, he relinquishes his position in the world.

Our achievements should be viewed only as a measuring rod to glorify even greater achievements of the present.

Society tags one who constantly relates of his past a braggart, but she smiles on one who is constantly striving to achieve. If you would have a job done well, employ a busy person, as idleness will be the death of his workshop.

Disatisfaction has paved the road to the world's greatest discoveries and inventions. Today, as in yesteryears, our greatest thinkers and creative men are those who are dissatisfied with the past and are possessed with an undying and relentless objective—to strive and achieve.

Perhaps the reason underlying the ever-supply of satisfied persons is that we ask so much of the world and have so little to offer it.

Invariably, our efforts toward progress are circumvented by misfortune. We then travel the line of least resistance—dispair. It was Paul who said "Small minds are subdued by misfortune, but great minds rise above it." Little realization is given to the fact that all worthwhile achievements are preceded by hard work, despair, determination, and a firm sense of values.

As Boethius so skillfully and aptly put it, "If what you did yesterday still looks big to you today, you haven't quite done your part today."

In 1956, let us continue striving to achieve and uphold the worthy principles and aims for which our College so nobly, proudly and firmly stands today as in yesteryears.

The Periscope

During the early days of January, President Dwight D. Eisenhower submitted his fourth annual "State of the Union" message. The message was read in the two houses by clerks due to the President's recent illness. In this message, the President first expressed grateful thanks to a kind God "whose protection has been ever present, and whose bounty has been manifold and abundant." He summed up the state in which the United States finds itself at the end of 1955 and in accordance with the Constitution, he turned to the prospects for the future.

The U. S. primary objective was the achievement of world peace and the removal of "the pall of fear" stated the President, reviewing the first meeting in Geneva and the meeting of the Big Four for the first time in October where the Communists showed their "true colors." President Eisenhower further stated that the nation needs the "strong search for regions objectives: In the Middle East, one of the world's "hot" trouble spots) a fair solution of the tragic dispute between the Arab States and Israel; in Asia, render aid to those nations struggling to maintain their freedom; in Europe, "a greater measure of integration."

He proposed a new approach to foreign economic aid, requesting Congress to grant him "limited authority to make longer-term loans for development." Egypt has threatened to refuse to accept aid of the Western Nations in its Aswan Dam project because of the lack of assurance of sufficient funds available to Egypt for future use and because of certain stipulations which the western nations which the Communists are not asking.

As for the national itself, the President proposed a five-year program of federal aid for the construction of schools, an extension of public housing facilities for low income areas, and a balanced budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1957, an experimental program of flood damage indemnities, a "soil bank" for agriculture, a ten-year, $25 billion program of interstate highway construction and others.

The recent election in France has been the biggest election target in France's history but to the dismay of many. Of the 21,794,479 voters to go to the polls 5,406 cast their ballots for the Communists and gave them increased representation in Parliament because in five years past the men of immobilism who governed France had been sent wanting. For the third time since World War II, the French people had gone to the polls. Eighty-two per cent of the eligible voters turned out and an Assembly of 626 seats, dispatched the governing power among four main blocs:

Communists—150
Right-of-center coalition (Premier Edgar Foure, Roman Catholic Independents)—200
Foujardists—52

Prior to the election the experts did not take young Pierre Poujade seriously. He was only a bookseller whose only program was a refusal to pay taxes and

Message From The President

Recently there has been unusual concern about tests and examinations. To mention the tests often creates definite emotional reactions in students or candidates expecting to take such examinations. It is not often that one finds individuals who are confident through college and the graduate school. Certainly, one should become accustomed to periodic examinations after a few instances. Learning to take examinations should be a normal process for students and individuals engaged in occupations or professions which make use of such instruments. If individuals had confidence in their abilities to succeed, there would probably be less fear or emotional shock. The individual faced with a examination should discover that his training and information are not adequate to undertake the task. In general, the test is adequately prepared to not experience the fear and the fright.

College students can secure insurance against such catastrophes by taking this insurance. Confidence can be provided in oversimplified terms, one might say that thorough preparation from day to day produces the feeling of adequacy and abilities needed to succeed in examinations based on one's training and level of development. The teacher and student both can make a contribution to the development of abilities and self-confidence needed for success in examination. Teachers through the administration of quizzes, tests, and quarterly examinations can be sure that students have had opportunities to acquire the reactions necessary for successful examination results. However, the major part of the preparation rests with the student. The chief difficulties confronting students may be traced to a lack of balance and variety in the fields of knowledge. Students taking comprehensive examinations in the sciences find their knowledge and information are almost non-existent. Since one acquires education through his own activities and experiences, students should develop a plan which will help them grow and learn in the various fields.

Present-day magazines, newspapers, and books provide excellent material in language and communication, fine arts, natural sciences, social sciences, and the professions. It is up to the student to see that his education plan possesses the variety needed to produce a well-educated person. At every level in college students can begin now to provide for that balance and variety of experiences needed to develop a well-educated individual. As a good beginning the student might make a chart on which he could check the activities in which he engages that contribute to each of the major areas. Such a plan would tend to reduce the insecurity and resulting emotional fear and shock.

When he comes into the world, everybody wants to kiss him; But before he leaves, everybody wants to kick him. If he dies young, he leaves a great future to him; but if he lives to reach a ripe old age, he's in the way and only living to save funeral expenses. Life is funny. So why take it so seriously—you will never get out of it alive.

With drops and drops of ink,
And never a prof' worth leaving the room
And allow a guy to think.

CAMERA CLUB

By Reubin Cooper

The first meeting of the year for the Camera Club was held January 6, with interest and enthusiasm greater than ever.

Plans were made for several activities during the year and it is hoped that this year will be the best yet in the history of the club. One of the activities planned for the near future is a field excursion. Our Advisor, Mr. Bowen, has donated a prize to be given to the member who makes the best picture on this trip.

The officers for the year are: Reubin Cooper, president; Alexander Gardner, vice-president; Bertia Dilardi, secretary-treasurer, and Dorothy Moore, reporter. Mr. W. M. Bowen is advisor to the club.

Savannah State defeated the Bethune Cookman Wildcats 70-61. In this game Robert Robbins tossed in 19 points, and Noel Wright and Otis Brock tossed in 14 points each.

The freshmen members of the Tigers' team got a chance to display their basketball ability when the Tigers upset the Clark Panthers and sent them down to defeat 64-58.

The Savannah State Tigers rid themselves of the jinx that the South Carolina State Bulldogs held on them by winning five consecutive years by defeating the Bulldogs 69-62. This was a see-saw battle until the final two minutes of play. During the final minutes the Tigers surged ahead and kept their lead until the final buzzer sounded. The scoring leaders in this game were: Noel Wright, who scored 15; Otis Brock, who scored 12; Richard Washington, who scored 9, and Charles Ashe and Robert Robbins, who scored eight points each. Robert Lewis scored six. L. J. McDaniel scored four and Henry Froylo and Clevon Johnson scored two points each.

To date the Tigers have won four of their first five games. The remaining home games for the Tigers will have the Tigers playing Paine College January Florida Normal January 23, Albany on February 2, Allen University on February 11 and Morris College on February 14. The SCAU tournament will be held at Savannah State College February 24-25.

Bob Robbins
By Leah Melver

Only member of the Savannah State's Tigers Basketball team who has been able to maintain a 30 point average per game for the first four games for the Tigers this season is Robert Robbins. He is a freshman here at Savannah State College and he is planning to major in Mathematics. Upon graduation he plans to become a teacher of Mathematics or a high school coach.

In his first game with the Tigers and his first college game, played against the Clark Panthers of Atlanta, Georgia) he scored 16 points. In the 1955 game against Clark College on December 13, he scored 27 points which was one of his best games. The students of Savannah State College and local fans have but one word to describe Robbins and that word is "Sensational".

The Poor Prof.

EMORY UNIVERSITY, GA.—(ACP)—Professors are the butt of a couple of funnies that appeared in the "Humor Panel" column of the "Emory Wheel."

Prof.: "If I saw a man beating a dog and stopped him from doing it, what virtue would I be showing?"

Voice in the back: "Brotherly love."

And then there's the educator who came up with this one: "I shall now illustrate what I have on my mind," said the professor as he erased the blackboard.

Press Institute

Awards will be given to schools schools with the best newspapers, yearbooks, magazines, or other publications, classified as senior high, junior high, elementary—printed, mimeographed, or lithographed.

The Savannah State College Press Institute was organized first in 1950 as a local project, but because of increased interest, the participation now includes schools throughout the state of Georgia, and nationally famous consultants. The Institute is organized to encourage student publications to extend their influence and to raise their standards; to promote the belief that they are a means for education and not an end in themselves; to consider them as media of expression for the best in student thought and writing; to foster the interests and promote the professional status of the Advisers; to encourage a sympathetic understanding between advisers, the school administrators and the community; to aid those who are in need of assistance; and to serve as a clearing house for all in matters of mutual interest.

The Press Institute is affiliated with the National Council of Scholastic Press and Advisers Associations as well as a member of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

College Roundtable
James U. Melver

The College Roundtable is a series of panel discussions where the members of Savannah State College discuss and give pointers on many current issues. This program is held every first Saturday over radio station WAV 630 on your dial. The discussion for January was the recent "White House Conference on Education".

The Moderator for these discussions is Doctor Raymond Grass Lloyd who is chairman of the department of Economics at Savannah State College. The Participants on this month's panel were Dr. Thomas Saunders, Dr. Calvin Kiah and Mr. William Nelson.

Bachelor's Beware

Immediately she replies, "But you must not love me." And if you're as foolish as I was to ask why, the forthcoming answer is, "Because love and marriage go together—you can't have one without the other."

I must warn you that it is useless to question whether or not love and marriage really go together. The women have decided they do, and brother, once they decide something, as any married man (poor fellow) will tell you—it's final.

In the face of the present danger we must take a united stand. Together we remain free and independent. Divided we will be marched to the altar one by one. We must all become full-fledged and active members of the S.P.B. (Society for the Preservation of Bachelorhood).

The women have been arming themselves for three years and I need not remind you that they possess the most devastating weapons known to mankind, including the A, H or Z bomb. Their kisses will be molasses to even and their smiles more mysterious than Mona Lisa's. The melodious tones of their voices will become more entrancing and the antique grace of their walk will appear more voluptuous than ever before.

All of these subtle devices are to be employed for only one purpose—to lead us by the ear to that place which for so long has been taboo (the altar) and to compel us to utter those two forbidden words—"I do."

Against such an all-out attack on our independence, it is certain that some of us are doomed to the chains of matrimony. Only the very, very strong will survive, but survive we must. The realization that we have been building up since 1953 is going to be subjected to the most severe of tests for the next 336 days.

To those of you who have not taken time to build your resistance up, here is some very good advice.

If you cannot tell her no But you do not like wedding bells Then get prepared to run like—

I have some more advice to give but I must get dressed. My girl is coming to pick me up at eight and I'm sure that she will pop the question tonight. So I'll see you—at the altar.

What Type of Music Do You Like?

Eugene Moore III

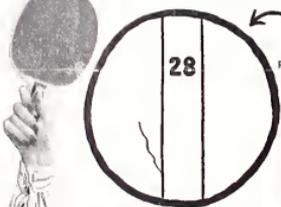

Here are the types of music that some of the students prefer here at Savannah State. You will also find their reasons for liking the type of music that they have selected as their favorite.

Harriet Pollis: "I like popular music because it is very relaxing."

Leon Coverson: "I prefer popular music because it is easier for dancing purposes."
Eudora Moore: "My love for music varies from classical to jazz. There is a definite quality in each for me."

Jolly Stephens: "I like rhythm and blues because it tends to take the dullness out of my life".

MY GAME! LUCKY DROODLES!

WHAT'S THIS?
For solution, see paragraph of right.

THERE'S NO GETTING AROUND IT—Luckies taste better. And there's no getting around that thing in the Doodle at left, either—the Doodle's titled: Lucky smother with bum seat at football game. Poor guy is really up against it. But he's got a swell point of view on smoking—he smokes Luckies for better taste. Luckies taste better because they're made of fine tobacco that's TOASTED to taste better. Chances are our friend in Section 28 is thinking, "This is the best-tasting cigarette I ever smoked!"
