Five Seniors With Top Cumulative Averages

There were five candidates for the bachelor of science degree at Savannah State College with a cumulative average for four years of more than 2.82. They were Alvertia Polite, elementary education, Savannah, 2.87; James Deen, biology, Alma, 2.84; Rosalyn Searcy, social science, Savannah, 2.839; Ruby Williams, home economics, Savannah, 2.835; and Lily Taylor, home economics, Waycross, 2.83.

Mrs. Polite worked as a recreational leader for the city of Savannah throughout her four years in college. She is a housewife and mother but still maintained an average of 2.87. This shows that a student can have responsibilities in the home and in the community and maintain a high scholastic average. James Deen was president of the student council, Man of the Year (1959), president of the campus chapter of Kappa Alpha Psi, Fraternity, Inc., and a recipient of numerous awards.

Wells Discusses African Continent

By Virginia A. Mercer

A film, "The Rising New Africa," depicting the new and modern developments in Africa, many of the modern buildings, parts of the country-side, and portions of the ceremonies as some of Africa's countries gained their independence, highlighted the All-College Assembly Program on June 23, 1960. The well-traveled J. K. Wells, State Supervisor of Schools in the state of West Virginia, was the speaker for the occasion. He has traveled to every continent except Australia and has visited the continent of Africa seven times.

Mr. Wells talked briefly on the "Ten Basic Concepts of Africa," which all Americans should be informed of. Mr. Wells stated the Ten Basic Concepts as (1) Africa is extremely rich in natural resources such as oil, gold, diamonds, and coal. (2) Africa is the home of great races. (3) Africa has had a great historical past. (4) Africans are extremely sensitive.

Mr. Wells went on to state that (5) African people have fine qualities which include a very big mind, a beautiful soul, and a great appreciation for music. (6) Africans have an extremely fine physical machine. (7) Africans are highly organized and give great respect to authority. (8) Africa is highly modernized. (9) Africa offers more to Negro people now than in the past 5,000 years. (10) Africa has many new changes taking place in government and many things for all to watch for.

656 Students Attend Summer Session At Savannah State College

Ben Ingersoll, registrar at Savannah State College, announced the enrollment of 601 students for the 1960 summer session, with 55 in the Department of Trades and Industries for a total of 656. These students are studying in a variety of areas from General Education to special workshops for in-service teachers as well as students pursuing degrees in biology, building construction, business administration, business education, chemistry, child development, clothing and textiles, economics, elementary education, English, foods nutrition and institution management, general science, industrial arts, industrial education, mathematics, music, natural sciences, social sciences, technical sciences, trades and industries, health and physical education, and the school and community.

In-Service Teachers Workshop Organized

The participants of the Teachers and Materials Workshop have had some interesting and challenging experiences. The consultants in charge are Mrs. Thelma Harmond, Mrs. Ida J. Eadsom, Mrs. Dorothy Hamilton, R. J. Martin, and Dr. Calvin L. Kiah.

The Workshop group is concerned with problems reflected in the school and community, and how to provide experiences to solve these specific problems of living. An opportunity will be given for members of the Workshop to improve their technique in teaching. Children have been enrolled in the Workshop for classroom demonstrations.

The purpose of the Workshop is to share experiences which will be meaningful and can be carried over into class activities. The problem areas are: 1. Human Relations and Discipline. 2. Evaluation; 3. Drop-Outs; 4. Grouping, Extra Class Activity, and Classroom Instruction; 5. School Health; and 6. Guidance. The groups were organized as

Dr. Williams Speaks At Assembly Program

By Norman B. Elmore
Dr. Elson K. Williams, Director of Summer School, Co-ordinator of General Education, and Professor of Social Sciences at Savannah State College, addressed the college family at the All-College Assembly program June 30, 1960.

The speaker's address was entitled: "The Real Quality of Man." Dr. Williams stated that "The quality of man is determined by the service of humanity and strive to eradicate the exploitation of background nations by powerful and imperialistic governments." He closed his address by asking the student body to join the crusade against communism which is a malignant threat to freedom and world peace.

Dr. Williams was introduced by Rev. A. E. Peacock, college minister. The music for the occasion was under the direction of Dr. C. A. Brattwaite, Chairman of the Fine Arts Department.

Other points brought out about the continent is that Africa is a beautiful place and does not have an unfit climate as many people have under the impression and not a continent of laziness. There were a number of African-made articles placed on exhibition at the All-College Assembly. They included articles made of ebony and other woods and materials native to the continent of Africa. After the Assembly, Mr. Wells extended questions from the students concerning Africa.

Among the active participants in the workshop are in-service teachers from a cross section of Georgia: They are Mrs. Alton, Atlanta; Mrs. Margaret Beard, Augusta; Mrs. Mildred Benard, Savannah; Earl J. Berksteiner, Savannah; Mrs. Christine Blackshear, Savannah; Mrs. Elleanor Blackshear, Macon; Mrs. Maggie Blackshear, Sapelo Island; Mrs. Lillie Blount, Savannah; Mrs. Annie Bostic, Savannah; Charles Brazner, Savannah; Mrs. Sarah Young Brown, Savannah; Crawford Bryant, Savannah; Mrs. Jo Anna Campbell, Baxley; Mrs. Ottilie Daniels, Savannah; Mrs. George Dabose, McIntosh; Benjamin Denzier, Savannah; Mrs. Annie Dingle, Patterson; Mrs. Fannie Donaldson, Cairo; Miss Neator Doyle, Swainsboro; Mrs. Virginia Dubose, McIntosh; Mrs. Sammie L. Gadsden, Gough; Frederick Glover, Savannah; Mrs. Hortense Grimsey, Waynesboro; Mrs. Martha Hatcher, Augusta; Mrs. Sallie Holmes, Waycross;

Message from Student Council President

Dear Fellow Students:

Significant factors of our day indicate that all around us changes are self-evident. The spirit of throwing out the old and welcoming the new and better is present here on our campus also. The general consensus of opinion echoes the cry that this is the year to have a student council that is really on the job.

This feeling represents a healthy attitude, for complacency has long retarded its usefulness. Nothing new is ever experienced by this who are completely happy with the things that surround them.

Your student council can only be as strong as the student body it represents. And in like manner, your leaders can only help whenever they are acquainted with your needs. For this reason, many plans are now in progress for a permanent student council office. Regularly scheduled meetings of the entire student body are also in the making. None of these factors can be successful, however, without your loyal support. It is as a result of your support that I was chosen Student Council President. It is my earnest prayer that this same support that was previously shown will last throughout the school year and work to produce a record unequalled by any before and unattainable by any coming after it.

Yours very sincerely,

EVA C. BOGEMAN
Student Council President

Message from Summer School Director

The Summer Quarter marks an articulate phase of the entire process of education at Savannah State College. It supplements and complements the experiences that are afforded during the regular school year. It enriches and invigorates the educational tone of the college. It provides for the immediate needs of the most diversified interests and talents.

The standards of scholarship for the Summer Quarter are comparable in all respects to those of the academic year. The high quality of teaching and learning, the educational preparation of the faculty, and the regular student body parallel those of the regular school year. In addition, the educational background of our in-service teachers (most of them have already attained a bachelor's degree and hold the master's degree) contributes substantially to an enriched atmosphere for teaching and learning.

The purpose of the Summer Quarter is stated in the Savannah State College Bulletin:

1. To afford opportunities for teachers in service to complete degree requirements; renew, upgrade, reinitiate or convert their certificates; improve their professional status; and enrich their experience for personal growth.
2. To make it possible for students regularly enrolled to pursue their studies the year around, and consequently to complete degree requirements in less than the normal period of four years;
3. To provide a program for entering students (freshmen) to begin their college work during the summer;
4. To institute special work-

The School Spirit at SSC

By Yvonne McClockton
After attending this institution for the past three years, it is quite evident that one of the greatest assets of our college is the school spirit. Here the students take little interest in participating in extra-curricular activities and as a result the school spirit is below par.
This poor school spirit may be due to a lack of stimulation. Many of the campus activities do not stimulate enough interest among the students. They merely exist from year to year and make no beneficial contribution to the school.

For school spirit can also be cultivated to lazy students. In this category are those students who come to the institution with no intention of participating in anything that is not a requirement. Let us hope that none of our students fall in this category.

In the future let's try to improve the school spirit at this institution. Let's use more of our talents and skills for the benefit of the school. The school spirit is the life of a school. In order for Savannah State College to be the best, the school spirit must be improved.

Let's look to the future, the school spirit must be improved. We should have projects varying according to the facilities of all of the interested and qualified persons concerned; and

5. To serve as a community college for all persons who are qualified to attend and are able to receive benefits from the college experience.

The administration and faculty along with the facilities of the college are designed to stimulate scholarship, to facilitate learning, and to provide the most desirable experiences for all who attend Savannah State College during this quarter.

THE EDITOR'S DESK

The Editor Speaks

Prestige is largely a matter of feeling, suggestion, impression; and it depends primarily on the possession of leadership which each of us has acquired through the years. The fact of the matter is certain that all men have the quality of good leadership. It is though there is something in what we call a "natural gift of authority," which cannot be acquired; it comes from the innermost being of some individuals and varies in each. The true leader, like the great artist, or singer is a man with inner propensity which can be strengthened by the exercise of his abilities.

Students in college have a great opportunity to show and develop their leadership and other outstanding abilities. It is up to us to evaluate ourselves as during to the open these special interests. The training we are now being exposed to will no doubt develop our individual leadership and prestige.

How To Be An Effective Leader:

1. Always have a pleasant but stern personality. Meet new people, never stop speaking to those you know.
2. Observe others carefully and make clear your objective as a leader.
3. Be able to cope with factors in any situation.
4. Insure yourself of self-confidence and determination to do a good job.
5. Always establish an atmosphere of calmness and alertness.
6. Influence men's minds through speech, and dress. Always create favorable impressions.

The above concepts are personal speculations each one should possess.

2. Always establishes a leadership within one's self-determination. Once the leader has been judged capable of adding the distinct of his personality to the known factors of any situation, the ensuring hope and confidence will add immensely to the faith reposed in him by others.

Remember, to speak to the dilute one's thoughts, to give vent to one's ardor—in short, to display one's personality to the audience demands all of these plus concentration.

Strength of speech and inner determination will pave the way to greater heights of prestige and leadership.

Politics and World News

The Forthcoming National Election

By James J. DeVoe

Who are you going to vote for in November in the event that Richard Nixon and John F. Kennedy are the candidates of their respective parties? This question is very important in American political circles today. The Democratic candidate may be hindered by his age and religion, although he showed considerable strength at the Democratic National Convention by winning his party's nomination on the first ballot.

On the Republican angle, a vast majority of the people believe that Mr. Nixon is too conservative. They further stressed that his party was to blame to some extent for the failure of the Paris Summit Conference. So, one can plainly see that Mr. Nixon too has some hurdles to pass.

All in all, discussing the situation of the various candidates and their respective platforms will not help them, unless the American people go to the polls and vote in November. Talk is cheap; it's the vote that counts.

Student Opinions of the Forthcoming Presidential Election:

William Burton, senior:

"I am definitely for Kennedy. His religion and youth should not be a major factor in this election. Mr. Kennedy is the man who will do a splendid job in the White House."

Miss Roberta Davis, freshman:

"I am going to vote for the candidate who will stress strong civil rights for the Negro population."

Thomas Farlow, junior:

"I will vote for Mr. Nixon, because I want to be on the winning side."

Miss Shirley D. Jones, junior:

"One of the most important positions of the world is that of President of the United States. The next president should be able to accept responsibility in an intelligent manner, and he should further stress more racial equality. I sincerely feel that this man is Mr. Nixon."

Miss Mary D. Wilson, freshman:

"I will cast my vote for Kennedy because I feel that he has a bright outlook on the future as far as the United States is concerned. He has freely voiced his opinions on vital issues and he seems to be able to handle the situation that Mr. Eisenhower failed to attempt."

Miss Geraldine Spaulding, junior:

"In November, I will cast my vote for Senator John F. Kennedy, because he is an experienced leader who will channel the United States into an era of peace and security."

Miss Ruby Futch, sophomore:

"I am voting for Vice President Nixon, because I like the outlook of the Republican Party. I also feel that Mr. Nixon has the experience that it takes to carry on the responsibility of the President of the United States."

Library Presents Art Exhibition

Paintings by members of Professor Phillip Hampton's Water Color and Painting Classes are on display in the Seminar Room of the College Library.

The exhibition includes the works of three prominent art enthusiasts of the community, Mrs. Ernestine Bertrand, Mrs. Sadie M. Jason, and Mrs. Mary B. McDew. These ladies have been studying Water Color under R. Hampton.

Works by Henry Balloun and Miss Roberta Polite, graduating seniors, and Carl W. Moore, a freshman are also on display.

Two abstract paintings by Mrs. Bertrand and Mrs. Polite were eye-catching. Mr. Balloun's painting is a semi-abstract gouache. Mrs. Jason has on display a gouache painting depicting a peaceful lake. A semi-abstract in tempera by Mrs. McDew is a fascinating scene by view. Carl W. Moore, a promising freshman, is represented by a life-like village scene in water color.

National Sports

By Charles S. Toole
For The First Time
For the first time in history it has been done. I refer to the recent triumph gained by the young maverick Floyd Patterson. The youngster who roamed the streets of New York City has gained international fame by recapturing the heavyweight title of the world in detouring the "glamour boy," Ingemar Johansson, in the fifth round of their proposed fifteen rounder, June 20.

The youthful Patterson feels that for the first time he says like a real champ. "This is easily the most gratifying moment in my life. I never for a moment thought of losing, but to win it this way—it's just perfect. I can't tell you how happy I am," were the words Patterson spoke after his great victory.

When asked if he wanted to fight Patterson again, Johansson stared glassily and mumbled, "I don't know."

So far down in history goes another record among the many which have been made by "Tan" stars.

Sets World Record at Trials
Also on our national scene we find that John Thomas of Boston University, during the Olympic trials held at Stanford, California, July 1 and 2, set a new world record in the high-jump.

Thomas' jump of 7' 3 1/2" gave him a spot on the U. S. Olympic team that will travel to Rome, Italy. When the announcement was made concerning the jump, the crowd of some 43,000 people rose to their feet and applauded him.

Some believed that Thomas, after a not-so-long-ago "freak" accident on an elevator would never again be able to jump. However, this determined lad, who is in his "teens," has proven that he can set many more records before the "chips" go down.

Thomas will be amidst but a few teen-agers who will venture with this mighty team that the United States will send abroad. During the trials, thirteen try-outs were held and one entered in 17 events by Thomas. Can the United States sweep the meet in Rome? Let us wish them luck.

Campus Spotlight

By Yvonne McGlockton

The writer of this column takes pleasure in presenting in this edition two interesting personalities.

One of the personalities is Carolyn Vinson, a junior who hails from Savannah, Georgia, and is a graduate of Alfred E. Beach High of this city.

In the fall of 1958, Carolyn enrolled at Savannah State College and immediately became one of the college's active students. She joined the creative dance group, college playhouse, college marching band as a majorette, and the women's ensemble. In her sophomore year she served for her already long list of activities, Delta Sigma Theta Society.

Carolyn proves the fact that extra-curricular activities and scholarship go together. EVERY consecutive quarter since she has been at the college she has been on the honor roll.

Attractive and debonair, Carolyn is the happy-go-lucky type. She often believes in "not worrying." For enjoyment she has a variety of interests which include swimming, dancing, and reading.

At present she is majoring in Social Science with the ambition of becoming a social worker after she goes to graduate school.

Another interesting personality is that of Nathaniel Johnson,

Cooperative, courteous, and competent are three "Cs" which adequately describe Nathaniel. He is always willing to give a helping hand and he is highly efficient in his work.

Hailing from Savannah, Georgia, Nathaniel is a 1956 graduate of Woodville (Tompkins) High School of this city. Presently at Savannah State, he is a senior majoring in mathematics and minoring in physics. He is affiliated with several campus organizations such as Beta Kappa Chi National Scientific Honor Society, vice president of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity (Dean of Pledges), Committee for Curriculum Improvement, and the Student Council (vice president).

His favorite dishes are roast chicken and fried shrimp. As a pastime, he enjoys golf and tennis. His foremost ambitions are to obtain a civil service position at the United States government, own a sports car, and marry Eleanor Johnson.

The writer of this column takes pride in adding these two outstanding personalities to the Spotlight. May your abilities and attitudes continue to be reflected among your associates.

Nearly 50,000 Foreign Students in U. S. Colleges

More foreign students in the United States during 1959-60 than ever before, the Institute of International Education reported in its annual survey released today. The 48,486 foreign students in American college classrooms this year continue to represent the largest foreign student population in the world.

Actually, however, this year's increase is the smallest rise in the last six years. In 1958-59, the increase of foreign students over the previous year was 8.8%, whereas this year the rise was only 2.6%. This may be an indication that the heavy influx of foreign students each year is leveling off.

On the other side of the two-way exchange, the traffic of American students going abroad increased a significant 34%. Though part of this increase is attributed to better polling, more and more young Americans are discovering the rewards of a foreign academic experience.

The movement of foreign faculty members to American schools or do research and intern doctors who served as foreign residents throughout our fifty states also accelerated this last year. The only decrease in any of the exchange categories surveyed was a 3.9% drop in the number of American faculty teaching or conducting research abroad.

These findings are revealed in the sixth edition of Open Doors, IIE's annual statistical report on educational exchange. The 41-year-old Institute is the world's oldest and largest multi-national exchange organization which its administrators programs involving more than 8,000 American and foreign persons each year.

The 48,486 foreign students in the United States this year came from 141 different countries and political areas and studied at 1,712 institutions of higher learning in every state of the Union, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico. Only 37% of them were newly-arrived, in contrast with 1958-59 when 58% of that year's foreign student population began their studies here. Their favorite field of study as in previous years, was engineering, and more than half of them were undergraduates.

The largest number of foreign students in 1959-60 continued to come from the Far East and the second largest number (9,428) from Latin America, according to Open Doors 1960. For the second consecutive year, the rapidly-developing Near and Middle East sent more students (17,110) here for study than did Europe (8,392). While area percentages vary only slightly from last year, both the Far East and Africa sent more students here for study than in 1958-59. Canada continued to be the single country sending the largest number of students to our shores.

Modern Art Is Acceptable?

By Theodore Smith

This is the first in a series of articles which will appear in the Tiger's Roar. The appreciation of art is generally not accepted as it should be. The purpose of this column is to cite new and old creations in art.

The author wishes to remind the reader that he is not an artist and these articles will present modern art from a non-technical point of view.

In order to generalize the idea of modern art, one must include the progressive types of writings and music of our times.

The phrase "Modern Art" is an image of a canvas covered with some arbitrary organization of lines and colors which at best confuses rather than clarifies the mind of the painter. Sometimes along with this impression there is a BEARDED INDIVIDUAL called a BEATNIK, who receives credit for creating a masterpiece, often called a "mess."

Another impression of modern art might be a bar or a cafe at which the painters gather to exhibit their works to the interested public.

If anyone of these images is a true one, perhaps it might as well be considered all of these as the trend in art today. Art itself is the phrase of a man who looks into the smallest expression of inner beliefs and truth and puts it on canvas in oil. It reaches out to touch the eye as well as human imagination.

Modern art is many things to many men in different places. It is a way of expression and pleasure. How do you feel toward modern art? I sincerely hope you will evaluate my thoughts on the subject and follow this column in future issue of the Tiger's Roar.

Ed Whitney's last words: "Kiss your cotton pickin' harem off my grin."

The sultan kept his harem several miles away from his palace, and each day he sent a trusted servant to fetch one of his wives. The sultan was so trusted; the servant died at the age of 40.

Moral: It's not the women who kill you, it's the running after 'em.

The fastest moving object, next to a jet plane, is a nudist who spilled hot coffee in his lap. "Look at the way these young people dress today!" snorted the nudist at the nurse who told him: "Another judge standing next to him. See that thing with a poofie haircut, blue jeans, and slant hanging out. I can't even tell whether it's a boy or girl!"

The judge he was talking to coldly answered, "I can assure you it is a girl — she is my daughter."

"No apologies," mumbled the first judge, "I had no idea you were her father."

"I'm NOT," snapped the parent, "I'm her mother."

"Yes, sir," the boy said.

"She is," said the boy, "but I don't live here."

Modern Trumpet Players

"What Miles Davis showed us" says Art Farmer, who has developed into one of the most warmly lyrical of modern jazz trumpet players, "was that you could play musically and get recognition without having a lot of technique."

Before Davis, of course, there were other jazz trumpeters who played sharp, ringing lines—among them, Dixie Baerboeck, Joe Smith (who was particularly expressive behind Bessie Smith), and Frankie Newton. Another, who has survived and is as judiciously elegant as ever is Bobby Hackett. Farmer is impressed by Hackett's "fluidity and that full sound and feeling he always gets out of his horn." Miles Davis, who is more difficult to please than any critic, is also a long-term Hackett admirer. "He has such consistent taste," Miles said recently, "that he never gets tiresome."

Art Farmer meanwhile is the nominal leader of a brass-with-rhythm section sextet in BRASS SHOUT (United Artists 4647, SONY stereo). Benny Golson has written two originals and five other arrangements that are thoroughly idiomatic in their scoring for the three trumpets, two trombones, baritone horn, French horn, and tuba. Golson achieves a mellow brass sound in the ensemble passages with emphasis on the middle and lower ranges in contrast to the leaping of the Stan Kenton and Maynard Ferguson brass sections. Out of Golson's subtly colored textures come several persuasive, thoughtful soloist besides Farmer. Among them are Curtis Fuller, trombonist and Julius Watkins, the only jazz player on French horn who doesn't sound as if he had strayed into the wrong studio.

In BRASS SHOUT, there are also two intense trumpet solos by Lee Morgan, a breezily self-confident twenty-one-year-old who is more in the explosive tradition of Dizzy Gillespie and Clifford Brown but is also growing in self-discipline. A characteristically crackling, witty Morgan can be heard with Art Blakey and the Jazz Messengers.

Delta's Dreams Come True

In Delta Nu Chapter of Delta Sorority, the dreams of the sorors have come true. In this edition we would like to relate some of them to you.

Ernestman, Eleanor Johnson, and Yvonne McGlockton's dreams came true when they were victorious in the recent Student Council election. They were named Student Council President, Vice President, and "Miss Savannah State" respectively.

Cynthia Rhodes' dream became a reality when she recently boarded a plane en route to San Diego, California. There she is attending the National SNEA and NEA Convention. Cynthia is also president-elect of the Georgia SNEA.

Nine other sorors dreams came true when they received degrees from this institution a few weeks ago. The chapter honored them with a farewell party on Hilton Head Beach in Hilton Head, South Carolina.

The chapter's dream came true when we received for the fifth consecutive year the Kappa Alpha Pal scholarship trophy.

Keeping it awards annually to the Greek-letter organization with the highest scholastic average.

The chapter has helped to make our dreams of others come true by giving a box of clothing to the Happy Home School for mentally retarded children of this city. We also gave a contribution to the Fight For Freedom Fund.

This fall we are looking forward to working under the leadership of the following officers: President, Marguerite Tigges; Vice President and Dean of Pledges, Cynthia Rhodes; Corresponding Secretary, Carolyn Collier; Financial Secretary, Gladys Lambert; Recording Secretary, Drucilla Moore; Treasurer, Louise Lamar; Parliamentarian, Rosemary McBride; Keeper of Properties, Eva Bowman; Pan-Hellenic Council Representatives, Almarie Glover and Verdel Lambert. With these sorors as our leaders, we hope to make our dreams come true for the sorority, the school, and the community.

Students Discuss New Library Standards

Members of the Library Science Class 302, School Library Administration and Organization, of Savannah State College presented an assimilated Television on the new school library standards which were published in March by the American Library Association, in the all-college chapel program, Thursday, July 7. Focusing attention on the new set of standards for school library-service, Library Science students pointed out to their fellow summer school students that the school library at both elementary- and secondary-school levels, has a vital part to play in supporting and promoting the aims of the total school program.

These standards were developed by the American Association of School Librarians, working with representatives of twenty other educational organizations. They set forth the principles and goals of an effective library program and describe in basic requirements of its realization. Dr. Frances Henne, Associate Professor in the Columbia University Library School and Miss Ruth Ersted, State School Library Supervisor in Minnesota, who served as co-chairmen of the School Library Standards Committee of the American Association of School Librarians, succinctly depicted the standards as follows: "The primary purpose of the standards is to describe the school library resources and services needed to provide quality education for children and young people and to present guide lines for developing school library programs of this nature; the standards then focus on library programs that contribute directly and effectively to the achievement of the objectives of these schools. They must be considered in the light of the objectives of the schools and not in an isolated or artificial fashion as though they referred to a library program set apart from the school as a whole."

Students who appeared on the Panel represented a wide variety of backgrounds. The following in-service teachers participated: Mrs. Albertha Vaughns, Savannah; Mrs. Jewell C. Robinson, Orange County, Florida; and Mrs. Lucy O. Solomon, Savannah. Two teacher-librarians, who were enrolled and actively participated were Mrs. Carrie Maynor, Screven County, and Mrs. Mattie Hicks, Liberty County. A public librarian in Pierce County, Florida, Mrs. Rachel Meeks, also served on the panel. Undergraduate students who participated on the program were Miss Vera Adkins and Miss Minnie Ruth Smith who are seniors. E. J. Joyce, Library and Associate Professor, was the instructor of the course in School Library Administration and Organization.

SSC Students at New York Child Care Center

By Yvonne McClockton
Eleven of Savannah State College students have been employed with the New York Migrant Child Care program for the summer. They are Zadia Brown, Estelle Burton, Alma Moore, Verdell Lambert, Drucilla Glover, Ella Marie Phillips, Virginia Norris, Ruby Sims, Marguerite Tiggs, and Vernita Wright.

These students will serve as directors, assistant directors, and group leaders at one of the twelve migrant centers which are sponsored by the state of New York in collaboration with the New York Growers and Processors Association.

The centers which are managed solely by college students, afford great opportunities for experience in planning and directing activities for children of all ages.

Last year four students from this institution worked with the program. Among them was Alice Knight, a June graduate, who served as director of one of the centers.

Senior Jason's Spanish Workshop

By Rachel E. Thomas
In-service teachers and regular students were given the opportunity to increase their Spanish skills in the six weeks Spanish Workshop offered this summer. Many experiences were gained through the very capable leadership of Senior Howard Jason, Associate Professor of languages and literature.

The course began on June 15, 1960 with these principal purposes in mind: (1) to increase the student's competence in the language; (2) to acquaint him with methods and materials for teaching this course; (3) to give students insight into Spanish life and civilization; and (4) to point out to him the urgent need today for Americans to study foreign languages, in the hope that we may carry the message to his students and to the people in his community.

The course aimed to have the students speak, listen, and read, and write as much Spanish as possible. The methods employed were: (1) to have both teacher and students use Spanish as much as possible; (2) to have students make tape recordings of their own speech, replay the tapes and analyze their pronunciation; (3) to make a second tape to determine the improvements made; and (4) to practice reading assignments on which the students are asked questions to be answered either orally or written in Spanish. Other techniques used were dictations, work on chalkboards, free compositions on subjects that had been discussed orally, lectures, and films in which the students had opportunities to express their thoughts and opinions.
